

“The 2015 FIFA World Cup marked a new era for football,” said Albert Roca, Executive Vice President and General Manager at Electronic Arts. “FIFA 16, along with the upcoming FIFA 17, represents a fundamental shift in the game as players are allowed to perform various types of tricks, more diverse dribbling and dribble moves, and players now compete for control of the ball not just on their foot or with their hands, but also with their upper bodies. With HyperMotion, we wanted to infuse the gameplay even deeper, further enhancing the realism and excitement of these high-intensity moves.” The new multi-object tracking is designed to enhance the sense of realism and mobility in close quarters. The highly enhanced data will enable players to engage in more challenging and diverse dribbling moves, as well as to gain an extra advantage from trying to control the ball on their upper body. New training modes FIFA 22 introduces the FIFA Play Live mode, which lets users play matches live against other players to hone their skills in just five minutes. In

Player Creator, users can now choose to create their own custom player, by creating a face, selecting a body shape and style, setting eyes, hair, clothes, shoes and preferred play style. The mode allows users to create their own first and second-team starting XI that they can use in the Electronic Football League, the console-only eSports league for those who enjoy playing FIFA on the console. FIFA 22 also includes some additional training modes. For example, Progression is an ongoing campaign that lets users spend their play time improving their skills by practicing skills at each level. Progression also introduces new modes such as Goalkeeper, where users can save and score goals as an official goalkeeper. For players of all ages and abilities, this mode allows them to improve and fine-tune their skills in training mode at each level, then use them to challenge their opponents in live games. The new FUT Champions Mode is designed for players who want to learn and compete against more experienced players online, as the feature challenges users to a variety of technical and tactical situations. The FUT Champions programme lets users qualify for the FIFA 22 FUT Champions league. Starting with 20,000 coins, users can earn up to 100,000 coins, all the way up to 250,000, by completing the campaign. The feature also introduces a brand-new tournament mode with teams that players can join or create, adding
